LAYERS OF SOFTER PAIN

Often in our support group meetings, I have shared that one day our pain grows softer, and as I look around the circle of new or fairly new attendees, I see the looks of absolute disbelief on their faces. I believe most of us who are grieving the death of a loved one, whether a child, sibling, spouse, parent, friend, or other family member, have a very hard time with accepting, and often allowing, that the pain will grow softer one day. It seems to us that if it does grow softer our love is weaker. I can tell you that never happens and our loved ones would want a softening of our pain for us. They would want us to one day rebuild our lives in our “new normal” state and to not suffer as agonizingly as in the beginning...

Father’s Day can hold both pride and pain, For fathers whose children are missed beyond words, Yet loved beyond measure. To grieving fathers: your child’s story lives on, In the love you still carry each day, And in the father you will always be. By William Hunton, Chelsea’s dad.

The mission of The Compassionate Friends is to assist families toward the positive resolution of grief following the death of a child of any age and to provide information to help others be supportive.

Our Monthly Meetings

To all those newly bereaved, who are receiving this newsletter for the first time and to all our Compassionate Friends, we wish you were not eligible to belong to this group, but we want you to know that you and your family have many friends. We, who received love and compassion from others in our time of deep sorrow, now wish to offer the same support and understanding to you. Please know we understand, we care, and we want to help. You are not alone in your grief.

Meetings are held the 2nd Monday of each month at the Foundation Center Conference Room in Lafreniere Park at 7:00 P.M. We are a self-sustaining organization with no funds except what we receive through donations from members and newsletter recipients. Please join with us at a meeting.

Grief support after the death of a child

The Compassionate Friends is a national non-profit, self-help support organization that offers friendship, understanding, and hope to bereaved parents, grandparents and siblings. There is no religious affiliation and there are no membership dues or fees.

The secret of TCF's success is simple: As seasoned grievers reach out to the newly bereaved, energy that has been directed inward begins to flow outward and both are helped to heal.

The vision of The Compassionate Friends is that everyone who needs us will find us and everyone who finds us will be helped.

Children's Memorial Walk & Auction
📅 Saturday, September 19, 2026
📍 Lafreniere Park – Metairie, LA

🕒 Registration: 8:30 AM | 🚶 Walk Begins: 10:00 AM | Auction to follow at the Foundation Center

The Compassionate Friends invites bereaved families, relatives, friends, and our entire community to come together for a morning of love, remembrance, and hope. On this day, we will WALK TO REMEMBER every beloved child who has left this earth too soon — and to show their families they will never be forgotten.

Whether you walk two miles or just a few steps, what matters most is the reason you walk — to honor these precious children and keep their memories alive.

We will wear race-style bibs, each carrying the name of a child loved beyond measure. Some will walk for their own child, others for children whose families cannot be present but want their names spoken and remembered.

Every dollar raised through pledges and donations will help our Greater New Orleans Chapter continue its mission — covering the cost of our monthly newsletter, outreach, and the programs that offer friendship, understanding, and hope to grieving families.

Your presence that day will be more than an act of support — it will be a promise to every bereaved parent, grandparent, and sibling that their child's life and love will always be remembered.

Mark your calendar. Walk with us. Remember with us. Hope with us.

If anyone had told me in the first years, though, after my son, Brian's death to a homicide, when he was at the receiving end of two bullets from a robber hell-bent on getting his wallet, that one day I would feel joy again I would have laughed in their face, claiming NEVER!

Actually, now, many years later, I am grateful for the softer pain and returning joy. If it still all consumed as horrifically as it did in the first few years, I could not have stood it. It would have literally killed me. Mercifully, though, as time passed it did soften. No, it did not ever leave, nor did I ever stop missing my son and I will never get over his loss. Instead, I have gotten on with it. It is incorporated into my new life, always a part of me just not fully engulfing me as in the beginning. As we have a measure of healing (we never fully recover) the joy comes in again; that first laugh that catches us off guard, the birth of a new family member/grandchild, a wedding, or graduation. Yes, each event is bittersweet, always over-shadowed by who no longer is able to share the events with us, but we can control the focus on the bitter or be grateful for the sweet.

As much time passed instead of the fresh, raw, bleeding pain in my heart, healing began to form protective layers over my open wound. With more time, more grief work, more acceptance, and many journey gentlers in my life the layers increased, allowing even more protection and the wound finally began to stop seeping. As it stopped seeping, a softening of my pain replaced the rawness of that fresh and open wound. It will happen but not real soon. It takes a lot of time, work, and many steps both forward and back.

The softening of my pain did not however, at any time soften my love. Nothing can ever take away from the love my son and I shared -and still share- as nothing can take that away from you, those who share the same painful loss. Embrace that softening of the pain that will one day come to you. It must. Or we would simply wither up and die from that open wound in our hearts. As you embrace the softening, the love actually becomes stronger. Nothing, not even death, can ever take away the love... As our wonderful Darcie Sims always says, "May love be what you remember most."

"Sorrow comes in great waves ... but it rolls over us and though it may almost smother us it leaves us. And we know that if it is strong, we are stronger, inasmuch as it passes, and we remain." Attributed to Henry James.

Story by Beckie Miller, Brian's mom.

A FATHER'S UNBROKEN PROMISE

To the world, you were a father for only a short time,
But no amount of time can erase your child's sweet smile.
From their peaceful place in Heaven, they watch over you,
Wrapping your grieving heart today in warm, protective light.
They know the heavy silence that a Father's Day can bring,
The ache inside your chest for a voice no longer there to sing
They know how much you miss them, how you carry them inside,
With a father's fierce devotion and a father's endless pride!!
Though they had to leave before you, their love remains your guide,
Walking softly through your days, forever by your side.
They want to see you breathe again, to find your Strength and Stand
To step into tomorrow with a steady, hopeful hand.
So take a deep breath for them today, let hope begin to rise
Live a life that honors them beneath these earthly skies,
Your journey isn't over, DAD. You have the strength to fight,
To carry on with courage and walk toward the light.

Happy Heavenly Birthday my Angel

TWENTY YEARS OF GRACE

Ten years have passed since that dark, quiet night,
When your beautiful soul slipped out of our sight.
You were twenty years old, with the world in your hand,
Struggling with burdens we still try to understand.
A decade without you, our brilliant, bright star,
But Erin, we love you right where you are.
We miss how you'd run to the basketball court,
Your grace when you danced, your strength in the sport.
You loved helping others and learning something new,
An endless devotion to all that you do.
Your academic triumphs, each prize and degree
You proudly achieved them, but gave them to me.
I miss your warm hugs and your sweet, tender kiss,
The everyday pieces of you that we miss.
Your dad and your sister hold onto your light,
We weep for you daily, we miss you each night.
We carry you with us in all that we do,
Three broken hearts, still so proud of you.
Until we can hold you and heal from the pain,
Our beautiful Erin, we'll love you the same.

We will Always Love and Miss You!! Mom, Dad, and Sis

Aubrey, my angel,

I wake up every morning by the fiery rooster's crow,
Only to hear, I just don't know, I just don't know.
I lie in my bed holding my rosary between my hands while praying,
Rolled up in a ball weeping and laying.
I don't want to get up, no not yet,
What lies ahead in my empty, lonely day, I fret.
Forcing myself to arise,
I do so with despise.
My day goes on, so very, very long,

Awaiting the stars and moon to shine bright, so I that I don't have to try anymore today to be strong.
Every day I shed deep, painful tears,
See, my daughter Aubrey, my angel, has gone to heaven and doesn't have any more fears.
She has reached solace and is in peace,
Not only being with The Lord Jesus, but all of her worries and suffering did cease.
My heart is missing a huge piece, so painful, so broken,
But I know I will be with Aubrey, my angel, again as Jesus has spoken.
I love and miss you so much Aubrey, my angel,

Momma

P.S., It's Aubrey's 39th birthday today. I am a member of a grief group for parents that have lost a child. I wrote this one night as Aubrey was in my mind, as always. I'm not to the point of celebration yet, but I have hopes of being there one day.

My Son, My Beautiful Boy

I miss you son. Dearly. I miss our conversations that spilled your knowledge of war and humankind. I miss you telling me of your boyhood that I missed so much of. Thank you for forgiving me. I'm still so marveled at your strange quite wit. Even though it was long drives to rehabs and MD appts for your failing liver, your suboxone, to take you to safety by your sister while you sober up, I was always glad to be near you. And when you were sober, the car rides allowed me to hear your stories, of wars and of your younger years. You are here as my son spirit my right wing alongside your sister Ayme, my left wing. I see you often as a monarch and especially as a dragonfly. Love you dearly my boy. Always and forever.

I miss you dearly!
Love always, Mom

THE HEALING CIRCLE OF REMEMBRANCE

In the last meeting as one of our participants was sharing her brother's Angelversary, I became aware of yet another layer of dealing with the loss of a loved one. At our monthly meetings, we bring photos to set out and pass around. We start to share a story we've held as a core memory. then as we speak and share, at some point, we usually break. In the midst of keeping our loved one's destiny heard, the searing pain that was felt initially rises up in our injured hearts, reminding us, no matter how long we have grieved, loss of child, grandchild or sibling will suddenly remind us - there are no more memories to be made. No voice heard calling out our name. No one to run outside to greet nor stand and wave goodbye to with a 'See you later' holler back. Our stories are a way to hold fast remembering the best moments of someone we dearly love and miss. We sit together each 2nd Monday and know when it is our turn to tell the tale, we will help one another get through to the end and hopefully go home somewhat lifted, a bit grounded, and get on with the day. TCF provides a safe harbor to spill our truths and shed our tears. I'm grateful to be amongst such warriors in grief. We show up and bare our broken hearts as only we can with those who clearly know our sorrow, our pain. It's an oxymoron of a blessing, a blessing nonetheless.
